Dr. Thomas Zurbuchen/NASA Slides Relating to UAP/UFO Program, June 2022

On day 3 of the ASEB/SSB Joint Meeting for 2022 held in June by the National Academy of Science (NAS), Dr. Thomas Zurbuchen gave a “Update and Discussion with NASA Science Mission Directorate” presentation. He had PowerPoint slides, and some of these were published days ago, but there was no real background published.

The organization that posted the photos of Dr. Zurbuchen later took them down, but The Black Vault had already contacted NASA, and learned that Dr. Zurbuchen was at a NAS event, held by the organizations Space Studies Board.

Days after the event, the NAS posted the entire PowerPoint presentation package. That is available below.

The Black Vault extracted the UAP related slides here, to highlight that section.

Special thanks to Twitter user Dr. Disclosure (@Disclosure89) for letting me know it had finally been posted.

Airspace Safety and UAP

Consistent with NASA's principles of openness, transparency, and scientific integrity, NASA is commissioning an UAP Independent Study Team in order to examine UAP from a scientific perspective, focusing on how NASA can use data and the tools of science to move our understanding forward.

- Airspace is increasingly crowded with piloted and autonomous vehicles, as well as balloons, etc.
- There have been over 400 reports of UAP
- UAP clearly pose a safety of flight issue, as well as a potential national security and/or counterintelligence threat
- A handful appear to demonstrate advanced technology
- The limited amount of high-quality reporting on UAP hampers our ability to draw firm conclusions about the nature or intent of them
